

MOTHERS give all and ask nothing in return. To bring us into the world they endure the agonies of the Valley of the Shadow. To them we turn in childhood for guidance and wisdom. Their self-sacrifice is continuous, their love more enduring than the hills. Small wonder, that men have exalted motherhood as a sacred state and mother love as symbolic of all that is finest in life. More than a decade ago, Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, originated Mother's Day. The entire nation will observe it May 11. While every day should be Mother's Day. It is excellent that we have a special day set aside for remembrance, tenderness and gratitude to mother. Especially is it a red-letter day for ones whose mothers are living. Send her flowers. If far from home, write her a Mother's Day letter. She will treasure the remembrance beyond the understanding of men. These little flower tokens mean so much to her, especially in the close to the sunset of life.

Woman's Desire to Avenge Blighted Love Caused Kidnapping

KANSAS CITY, MO., May 10.—(By the Associated Press)—A woman's desire to avenge a blighted love and to blackmail the man who spurned her was the motive behind the kidnapping of Freddie Leib, at Quincy, Ill., 53 years ago, according to a statement here of a man known as Robert Clark, 58, who declared he has established his identity as the long lost Freddy. He claims to be the son of Professor W. H. Leib, widely known music master, who died less than a year ago after having spent a life time and depleted his income in vain efforts to find his son. Clark has been a steel worker at Troyden, Tenn.

His story is that he was taken from his home by a woman, the hiring of a wealthy woman, who had once loved his father and had sought revenge against his mother. He also declared the woman sought to blackmail his father after the kidnapping by attempting to brand him as the father of a child born out of wedlock.

The woman alleged to have kidnapped him, Clark said, resides in the east. He refused to divulge her name. He said he had obtained her name and the names of several other persons who were accessories to the crime.

Clark claims to have been accepted by the music professor's daughter, Miss Bessie Sutherland, and a son, as their brother. He bears a striking resemblance to Professor Leib and his manner and speech are similar.

German Election, Although Only Placing Qualified Acceptance On Dawes' Report, Step Toward Peace

By Frank H. Simonds
WASHINGTON, May 10.—Two facts emerge from the comparatively complete returns of the German election. In the first place, the feared reaction has not been anything like as complete as was anticipated; secondly, the public opinion of this first election following the election is beginning to subside and it is perceived that, although the Dawes report has not been rejected there are going to be grave difficulties ahead, before it finds German acceptance.

Germany has not gone "hell-bent" for monarchy and revenge, to use the old Yankee phrase, nor has it taken the example of the Soviets as its guide. But Potsdam and Moscow have made gains and any new ministry, or the old ministry continued will find material difficulty in forcing through the Dawes Report without obtaining in advance some modifications.

Qualified Acceptance of Report
Weeks will now pass before the decisive conversations between Germany and her conquerors will take place, meantime every sort of effort will doubtless be made among the Allies to restore a united front

German Election

and at the same time avoid any affront to German susceptibilities. It is a mistake to speak of the Dawes Report as having been adopted by Germany, though the quasi-plebiscite of the recent election, at best the verdict did not go beyond qualified acceptance as a basis for negotiation and the real negotiations have still to take place.

All things considered the world has escaped a very real danger and it is unlikely that the French election will be much affected by the German results, which is another way of saying that the swing toward the left, that is toward more liberal and moderate views will probably characterize the French results. Meantime French criticism of the German results must be read with a clear appreciation of the fact that the various interested political leaders are seeking to advantage their own cause by their own interpretations of German returns.

The truth is that the German election gives Ramsay MacDonald a very real chance to bring about some sort of a settlement, because, while it leaves Germany able and perhaps willing to negotiate on the basis of the Dawes Report it discloses the fact that no German government can long hold office if it undertakes to make too far reaching concessions.

Germany in Reasonable Mood
Germany, all things considered, seems in a more reasonable mood than at any time in the past three years, at least. We have now a programme which offers a decent basis for settlement, we have a British prime minister who, all things considered, is at once the strongest and the sincerest statesman of the post-war period. In addition there is the unmistakable desire on the part of all Europe, of France and now it would seem of Germany as well, for peace and tranquility.

Until the French election of next Sunday nothing will be settled. But all observers agree that the prospects are bright. Poincaré will find himself with a more liberal Chamber of Deputies on hand, that he will in fact have to deal with a Chamber pretty fairly represented by his new cabinet—and this was frankly a cabinet at once more moderate in tone and framed with the prospect of friendly negotiations with Great Britain in mind. Moreover, if Poincaré should be beaten it would be by moderates not by nationalists and the Dawes Report would not be menaced from the French side.

The German results must have come as something of a surprise for London, Paris and the Continent generally for when I was in Europe six weeks ago the darkest apprehensions were held in all quarters. Evidently the reaction spent its force before election and the tide turned soon after the publication of the Dawes Report and because of its character.

Looking back at the war period it is interesting to recall how, suddenly, after nearly four years of static conditions, the struggle suddenly entered a decisive stage and German collapse arrived with swift-ness which left the victors utterly unprepared to use their victory. It would be odd if the deadlock over peace, which has endured quite as long should end as abruptly.

Ruhr Occupation Remains Unsolved
It is essential to keep in mind, however, that there are serious obstacles to be overcome, the first of which is the matter of the French occupation of the Ruhr. The Dawes Committee did not deal with this issue, as it was outside of its province. It did insist that French and Belgian occupation of the railroads and mines should extend beyond much longer the Germans will insist upon complete evacuation as the sine qua non of acceptance of the Dawes Report. Then it will be for the British to persuade the French, by means of concessions both in the direction of security and of commitments to act with the French in cases of any new German default.

Meantime the rise of Admiral von Tirpitz is worth more than passing notice. Despite his reputation the old admiral is by no means a more fire-eater and he was almost the first conspicuous German to perceive the fatal consequences of the loss of the Battle of the Marne. Unless age has impaired his faculties he may yet become the outstanding figure in Germany and act as a restraint rather than a stimulus to existing Nationalistic ardor.

In sum, the German election, despite certain reserves that it is prudent to maintain, represents one more step toward European settlement. Moreover, the chances of the survival of the German Republic are plainly increased, not many Germans are enamored of it, but the growth of both the Nationalists and the Communists as a consequence of the recent election shows the degree of difference in opinion which separates the two groups which are open in opposition to the present public. The Third French Republic came into being and survived because the Bonapartists and the Royalists, who were together majority but could not agree on a policy. Perhaps the German experi-

Distribution

anything else in the pending bill—is that provision adopted by the Senate which would force corporations to distribute practically all their earnings.

Business men who have studied the provision are not in the least desiring that not only would the property of the country be undermined if such a thing became law, but that interest rates would be forced upward and the business expansion of the United States would be seriously impaired.

A coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans has forced the proposal into the Senate bill and the administration will make a determined fight in conference to have it eliminated. Reduced to its essence, the provision means that big corporations which have always retained a large portion of their earnings as a margin of safety against fluctuating conditions in the world of industry would be compelled to pay out their accumulated funds in the form of dividends. That is, they would need money for expansion or for emergencies they would have to borrow. Under expansion when needed. The proposed tax law would deprive them of that opportunity. The theory of the proponents of the measure is that a large sum of money annually escapes taxation because it is not distributed in the form of dividends. Senator Jones of New Mexico contends that for seven years, from 1916 to 1922, inclusive, the total income of corporations upon which no surtax was paid amounted to $27,000,000,000. Only $18,000,000,000 out of a total of $45,000,000,000 earned in that period was distributed in dividends.

Senator Smoot, however, does not think that is necessarily abnormal or done with an idea of escaping taxation, for he cites figures from 1910 to 1916 before the high surtaxes were in effect. The corporations averaged 53 1/2 per cent of their profits in distributed dividends, while from 1917 to 1922 about 140 of the largest industrial concerns of the country averaged 65 per cent of their profits in dividends distributed. He points out that a treasury document shows that for all corporations during the year 1922, the distribution of profits amounted to an average of 65 per cent of earnings. On that account, he declares the industrial companies which would be penalized by the new law are the very ones who are innocent of the wrongs which the Senate is trying to correct.

The provision already incorporated in the bill is a graduated tax. Thus if 10 per cent of the earnings of a corporation are not distributed, there will be imposed a 5 per cent tax on the undistributed 20 per cent. This is entirely aside from the 9 per cent on all net income which is distributed. The tax runs upward to a maximum of 40 per cent tax if the undistributed income of a corporation is more than 58 per cent of what is known as the surtax net income.

The Treasury Department is vigorously opposed to all the provisions of the bill in the revenue law contains a sufficient safeguard against this form of tax evasion. The Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to impose a penalty whenever he discovers that corporations are holding in their possession more funds than they actually need

P. H. S. Commercial Department Seniors Entertained By Club

At their weekly meeting in the Mary Louise last night, the Senior girls of the commercial department, P. H. S., were guests of the Portsmouth Business and Professional Women's Club, and guests and hostesses alike enjoyed an interesting program.

Music for the evening was furnished by Misses Esther Severinghaus, Bertha Griver and Bess True, who sang several selections.

Miss Ruth Ross spoke on "High Spots in a Stenographer's Life." Miss Blanche Lowe, director of the Bureau of Community Service, spoke on "The Social Responsibility of a Business Woman," and Miss Agnes Cassidy spoke on "Frictional Factors in the Business World." Mrs. Dorothy Onkes read "Pioneer's Gout."

In a short address, Miss Florence Peterson, president of the club, read the following "Business Women's Code":

To be honest to the great truth—virtue—myself, my employer and my business.

To guard my health, realizing that good health is the first essential to a successful business career.

To develop initiative—having the courage to assume responsibility and the insight and originality to evolve ideas.

To be a team worker—creating an atmosphere of friendliness and co-operation rather than breeding discontent among my fellow workers.

To be prepared to see, grasp and claim the opportunities of my business career.

To be enthusiastic—convicted that enthusiasm is the paprika in the sauce of life.

To be generous—not alone of purse, but of my praise, my time and myself.

To be friendly—knowing that friendliness gives and finds happiness.

To know the vast value of time both for myself and others.

To be systematic—recognizing that system is the oil in the machinery of a business life, easing the friction and speeding the engine.

To be mindful always of the other person's point of view and circumstances.

Miss Peterson was elected delegate and Miss Vesta Stockham, alternate, to the state convention of P. H. S. clubs, to be held in Cincinnati May 30 and 31.

Senior girls of Commercial department of a high school present were: Elizabeth Baker, Fern Galtford, Marjorie Call, Eunice Newman, Oona Wheeler, Lucille Bricker, Cynthia English, Edith Eckhart and Eula Brady.

Langley, Kentucky, and two co-defendants, being tried in federal court here on two counts of an indictment charging conspiracy to sell and transport whiskey from the Belle of Anderson Distillery near Lawrenceburg, Ky., in 1921.

The case is expected to go to the jury late today. Conviction carries a sentence of two years in the penitentiary and $10,000 fine on each of the two counts for each defendant.

Cardinal Given Royal Reception

NEW YORK, May 10.—(By the Associated Press)—George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, who returned to his native land aboard the Berengaria last night and was greeted by a series of impressive ceremonies, leaves today for his arch-diocese, having expressed a desire to return as speedily as possible to "his own people."

It was almost eleven o'clock last night when the cardinal, after an eventful day, received the official welcome of Mayor Hylan, at a banquet given in his honor by the Chicago delegation of clergy and laymen.

In reply he said he was especially glad to be greeted in the city of his birth and the home of so many generations of his family.

"Little did I think," he said, "some forty-odd years ago, as a boy on the East Side of this city that one day the mayor of more than six million people would be here to bid me welcome. I am especially glad to be welcomed by Mayor Hylan, whom I knew for so many years when we both dwelt in obscurity in the neighboring borough of Brooklyn."

Hawaii Proposes Mills

To Solve Unemployment

HONOLULU, May 10.—(By the A. P.)—The establishment of a woolen mill here to relieve Hawaii's present and prospective lack of employment, has been suggested by territorial and local authorities by Sheridan L. Bushy, retired wool grower of Montana, who has resided here in Honolulu several years.

The suggestion came as the result of a recent conference of police and other officers on the unemployment situation and its concomitants, juvenile delinquency and criminality, and the need for diversified industries to furnish employment to persons who do not care to work on the sugar plantations and are idle except for the seasonal activities of the pineapple planters and canners.

Said real estate was appraised in accordance with the order of Probate and the court found that the value of the land was $200,000 and the value of the buildings was $100,000. The court then ordered the land and buildings to be sold to the Hawaiian Woolen Mills Co. for the sum of $300,000 and $400,000, respectively, of which sums $200,000 and $100,000, respectively, were to be paid to the estate of said George C. Mathiot, said lot No. 90, and release said lot No. 90, and the cancellation of the mortgage on said lot No. 90, as to said lot No. 45, plaintiff accepted the proposal of said Adolph Rebe and surrendered said lot No. 45, and received a deed from said Adolph Rebe conveying said lot No. 90, which is therein designated as Second.

The said Martin D. Mathiot, Halsey B. Hastings, Eva Bumgardner, Florence Bell, Joshua D. McMurtry, Ira B. Humphrey, George C. Mathiot, deceased, and their legal representatives, the unknown heirs-at-law of Sarah Ann Winkhouse, deceased, and their legal representatives, the unknown heirs-at-law of Cassandra Hastings, deceased, and their legal representatives, are hereby notified that they have been made parties defendant to said petition, and that they are required to answer same on or before the 15th day of July, 1924.

Harry W. Mathiot, as Administrator of the Estate of George C. Mathiot, deceased, MILNER & SEARL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.

CHILEAN'S ASPIRATIONS CHILLED; JOHNSON WINS IN SEVENTH ROUND

NEW YORK, May 10.—Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, knocked out Quintin Romero, of Chile, in the seventh round of a ten round match at Madison Square Garden last night.

It was one of the most furious struggles of the season. The Chilean, blinded by blood that gushed from a cut over his left eye, groped around the ring in the final round in a plucky effort to remain on his feet while absorbing tremendous punishment inflicted by Johnson. The Iowa's attack beat Romero's face into a red, pulpy mass.

Wild scenes followed the end of the bout. As referee Magnolia had apparently counted up to nine, the bell sounded. Romero was on his knees preparing to rise. Simultaneous with the bell, the referee waved both men to their corners.

Newspapermen at the arena thought the Chilean had been saved by the bell and that he would come up for the next round. A report spread that a member of the state boxing commission had ordered the bout stopped and a technical knockout awarded to Johnson to save his rival from further punishment.

Confusion reigned in the building centered at the ringside where a general fight started among protesting partisans at the time keeper's table. Policemen rushed from all parts of the arena to stop the disturbance, which had assumed the proportions of a riot. The announcer jumped into the ring, and clamored for attention; the fighters sat in their quarters, waiting for quiet, and the bout resumed.

The police finally subdued the ringside and permitted the announcer to declare that the referee had completed his ten swings and that Johnson had registered a clean knockout, and that the bell had been sounded by mistake. The final round was heart breaking to the Latin colony which had cheered their champion into the ring with many "hurrahs." Romero staggered, tumbled almost around the ring, an easy target for Johnson, but stubbornly refusing to drop.

Man Robbed In Taxi

Of $3,000 Cash, Jewelry

PITTSBURGH, May 10.—Threatened with death if he made an outcry, Albert Houston, 135 Courtcaine Avenue, Columbus, O., was forced by two bandits to order the driver of a taxi cab he was entering to drive to a lonely spot in the suburbs early today, where he was robbed of a diamond, other jewelry and cash valued at $3,000, he told the police.

The taxi driver assumed the robbers were friends of Houston as they joined him when he was about to step into the machine, police said.

Here Are The Latest Batting Averages

CHICAGO, May 10.—(By the Associated Press)—With more than three weeks of the major league pennant race completed, Harry Heilmann of Detroit, 1923 batting champion of the American League, is making a whirlwind race for the 1924 title with the remarkable average of .493.

The slugging ace of the Tigers whose batting has been an important factor in pulling the Detroiters closer to the Yankees, has smashed out a hit every second time he has faced a pitcher since the start of the season. He has connected safely thirty-four times, making five home runs in addition to nine doubles. In his last six games, including Wednesday, Heilmann bugged an even dozen hits.

By Cobb, the Tiger leader, who gave Heilmann such spirited competition a week ago, fell into a slump which carried him down in the list of leaders, the runner-up position going to Ken Williams of the Browns with an average of .328. Joe Harris of the Red Sox is third with .427.

George Sisler manager of the St. Louis Browns, is challenging the leaders with an average of .352, which places him just outside the select first ten. Babe Ruth is maintaining his lead in batting out the homers with a total of six.

His Detroit, White Sox outfielder, and his captain Eddie Collins are fighting it out for the stolen base honors, with Barrett leading Eddie 7 to 6. Neither has any close competition.

Other leading batters: Sumner, Cleveland, .382; Dugan, New York, .355; Cobb, Detroit, .355; Jamieson, Cleveland, .388; Dugan, New York, .355; Veach, Boston, .333; Simmons, Philadelphia, .358; Sisler, St. Louis, .352; Sheely, Chicago, .349; Judge, Washington, .346; Eusebio, St. Louis, .340; Hooper, Chicago, .334.

A damaged thumb, forcing him out of the game, cost Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, and 1923 batting champion of the National league, the leadership this week. Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, moved into the commanding position with an average of .437, maintained as a result of connecting with 16 hits in his last seven games.

Hornsby was hitting .426 when he was forced to retire. He sprained his thumb sliding into a base a week ago Thursday at Pittsburgh.

Jacques Fournier of the Dodgers "gys" Williams of the Phillies and .364.

Despondent Mother

Kills Self and Daughter

LEXINGTON, KY., May 10.—Despondency over the helpless condition of her invalid daughter, Anna Lee, 19, apparently caused Mrs. Charles Reed, 42, to kill the girl and herself with a pistol at the family home here today. Reed, a construction worker, said his wife seemed cheerful when he left for work.

In a note Mrs. Reed said she killed the girl "for me and you."

NEW YORK, May 10.—Extreme weakness characterized this week's irregular stock market. Prices developed a firm tone at the beginning of the week in response to the presidential veto of the Bureau of Mines bill but became unsettled later in the week on unfavorable trade news and the Senate's insertion into the tax bill of a graduated surtax on undistributed corporate earnings.

Steel shares were inclined to ease on reports of a further contraction in steel output and increasing price competition. Reports of a proposed general decrease in wages in the steel industry lacked confirmation.

Oil stocks turned heavy on publication of the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute showing another increase in crude production for the week ended May 3, and hammered down to a new low record for the year on reports that the company was planning a new is-due of securities but it developed later that bank credits had been withdrawn, which would take care of its financial requirements. Another sharp drop in the railroads was noted in the railroads, particularly the investment issues, despite another sharp drop in car loadings as compared with last year. Northwestern carriers in good demand, Pere Marquette rising to a new 1914 high in the face of official denials that any other increase in the dividend was contemplated, rumors of which previously had been held responsible for the decline in the stock.

Pool operations were apparent in a number of specialties although these were rather restricted in nature, owing to the uncertainty regarding the final form in which the tax bill will be enacted into law.

Foreign exchanges broke sharply on reports of labor troubles in the Ruhr, and the effect of communists' members of the Reichstag in the occupied territory but they made irregular recovery toward the end of the week. French francs again sold below six cents each.

General Electric broke four points in the afternoon, and Stewart-Warner each suffered three point losses. Atlantic Coast Line was a conspicuous exception to the general market trend, moving up more than four points in anticipation of an extra dividend. The closing was weak. Sales approximated 425,000 shares.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Stock prices drifted irregularly lower at the opening of today's market, which was marked by an absence of aggressive operations on either side. United States Steel was subjected to selling pressure in anticipation of an unfavorable trading statement today and in yielding fractionally carried Baldwin, American Can and other market leaders lower. Oil shares were heavy. Phillips Petroleum dropping two points.

Execution of large selling orders in the oil shares followed reports of a reduction in the price of Mid-continent Crude and values ran off sharply. Losses of one to two points were common in this group, with Standard Oil of New Jersey and Marland dipping to the lowest levels of the year. Further liquidation developed in Yellow Cab Manufacturing, which also dropped to a new 1914 minimum figure at 45 1/2. General Electric, DuPont, Baldwin and other popular specialties were under pressure, registering losses of a point or more. Moderate trading appeared in rails which held steady in the face of heaviness in the rest of the list. Foreign exchanges opened firm.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Wheat eased down in price today, during the early dealings, sellers acting on tradition that this was a calendar date to favor the bear side of the market. Besides, fear a European demand for Kansas had apparently vanished. On the other hand expected developments in regard to farm measures at Washington tended to check any material decline in price. The opening, which ranged from 1/2 to 1/4 lower, with May 1.04 1/2 to 1.04 1/4 and lower, was followed by a slight uptick and heavy, 1/2 to 1/4, 1 1/2 to 1 1/4, and July 1.05 1/2 to 1.05 1/4.

Corn and oats were poorly supported. Most of the trade consisted of switching from May delivery to July. After opening unchanged to 1/4 to 1/2 lower, July 7 1/2 to 7 1/4, the corn market declined a trifle all around. Oats started at a decline to 34 to 35 off, July 44 1/2 to 44 1/4 and later continued to weaken.

Provisions reflected a downward tendency in the hog market.

The close was heavy at 1/2 to 1 1/2 cents net decline July 7 1/2 to 7 1/4.

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton proves an unhappy one. When war is declared, Nigel is glad to enlist. He leaves Dolly in the care of Mary Fairval. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart, Robert Durham.

Dolly and Robert sail for America and word comes of the sinking of their ship. When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and asks her to come live at Red Grange with him and his aunt.

Mary is given a hearty welcome to her new home. When Dora Fisher comes to call at Red Grange, Mary asks David not to accompany Dora to the station.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
She escaped past him now, and went into the hall, where Miss Varney and Dora Fisher stood together. Mary thought that the latter looked at her rather curiously as she joined them. She was conscious of hot cheeks and nervous manner. She went on to the front door, and stood looking out into the darkening garden.

The headlights of the big car pierced the gloom like vicious eyes, throwing everything beyond into acute shadow. Bretherton passed her and climbed into the front seat; he did not look at her.

After a moment or two Dora followed him; she was laughing and talking all the time; she shook hands with Mary effusively.

"I am so pleased to have met you," she said. "I hope we shall meet many friends. You must come and stay with us in town, will you?"

Mary's troubled eyes turned towards David, but he was sitting at the wheel, staring straight in front of him. She began a stumbling reply.

"Thank you, but I am very much obliged. I am only on a visit, you know. Thank you very much, all the same."

A little flash of interest, even into Dora's face, but it was gone instantly.

"Is that so? I didn't know; but perhaps you will be able to spare us a week-end sometime. Good night."

She got into the car beside David. He drew the rug round her punctiliously; Mary watched them with an absurd little heartache.

"I am so pleased to have met you," she said. "I hope we shall meet many friends. You must come and stay with us in town, will you?"

no idea she was so nice. Monty now thought much of her, you know."

"No!"

"He said he considered she was rather common, but I should hardly call her that, would you?"

"Hardly."

"It was not encouraging, but she went on."

"I was so surprised when she told me that she is only with you on a visit. I quite thought that she was going to live here."

"I hope she will." The answer was quiet and unconcerned.

Dora bit her lip angrily, but her voice was sugary enough when she next spoke.

"Do you? How awfully sweet of you! I think she is so fortunate to have such kind relations-in-law; as a rule they are rather horrid, don't you think?"

"I've never been married-so I can't judge," said David. He sent the car forward a trifle more quickly; through the night had sounded the distant whistle of the incoming train.

"I think we shall just catch it," he said smoothly.

The train was at the platform when they left the car outside the station; there were only a few seconds in which to say goodbye.

Dora swallowed her chagrin as best she could; her pretty face was creased in smiles as she leaned from the carriage window.

"It has been so nice to see you again; you won't forget us next time you come to London, David?"

"I certainly will not. Tell Monty I will look him up."

She pouted.

"That means the office."

"Not at all. I will make a special point of calling to see you."

But the words were impartial, in spite of the accompanying smile; the last glimpse she had of him was his grave face, from which all consciousness of her was already fading.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
A Change of Color.

She sat back in her corner of the empty carriage, frowningly. After all, she almost regretted having paid the visit at all; Red Grange had seemed even more alluring than she had previously remembered it, and David less susceptible to her charms.

Why was he so different from all the other men of her acquaintance? she asked herself angrily. She could enumerate half a dozen in as many seconds who would have given anything for the chance of a possibly lengthened tête-à-tête with her; but David had merely driven the car faster to get rid of her.

But David's very indifference lent a spur to her hitherto only half-formed resolve. She would marry him; she would marry him in spite of everything, and be mistress of the Red Grange.

As for that pale-faced widow of Nigel's-Dora's face hardened as she recalled the friendly way in which she and David had entered the drawing-room that afternoon, fresh from their drive.

Monty had been right when he said that from what he knew of the girl she would lose no opportunity to encroach herself at the Red Grange; and she had certainly done a lot during the short time of her stay there.

"Scheming little nobody!" was the thought in Dora's mind.

She tried to remember what else Monty had said about her beside the fact that she was common; she knelt her brows, puzzling her brain to remember.

There was something else, she was sure; something-oh, yes, he had called her "pretty, in a sort of a way," and commented on the fact that she had red-brown hair.

That was so like a man; to make such a mistake! Red-brown hair, indeed! Why, it was the most ordinary mouse-colored shade!

And her clothes! Dora indulged in a little smile as she remembered Mary's simple black frock; home-made, she had designated it from the first. Whatever on earth could Nigel have seen in her? Nigel, who always so admired a smart woman.

ON THE FIRST PAGE

THE story is common, all too common, nevertheless, we were deeply shocked, this morning, our eye catching at first glance, a story detailing an accident at a railroad crossing, in which eight people, including a family of five, were killed.

It may be that the incident of a woman running in front of the oncoming car waving her arms and frantically screaming to the driver to stop, having to jump out of his way to save her own life, had something to do with the pathos of the tale, but even at that it is a tragedy that drives one to appalling thought.

What is there about an automobile, anyway, that impels so many to utter recklessness? It is hard to conceive how anyone would not come to abrupt pause when he saw a woman in his path, but here was a man so utterly indifferent and unthinking, that not even the running down of the woman would stay his rush to death.

You can not say, that, however extreme his action, it is altogether singular. You have seen more than one person taking such hazards, so blindly regardless of the rights of others and their own safety, that you can whisper to yourself there are many just like him.

There isn't a newspaper in the country that is not continuously being appealed to to print something that will cure this widespread heedlessness. As a matter of fact the press has printed thousands upon thousands of columns of warnings and of appeals on its own account. Not, though, apparently with much result. Peril lurks and ever will at every railroad crossing, but the man at the wheel pays no heed, takes no counsel of ordinary prudence, but rides jauntily to meet danger and to die.

THE CARNIVAL OF WASTE

IT may be thought that there is more contention over the veto of the Bursum pension bill by President Coolidge than the amount involved warrants.

It may be true fifty-eight million dollars, the amount the Bursum bill proposed to have expended, is no great sum, as the government figures its requirements, nowadays, but it means at that a cost of fifty cents for every mortal soul in the country, and, in vetoing, the President may have been moved more by what is likely to confront him than the expenditure of the sum involved in this particular measure.

Twelve thousand bills and resolutions have been introduced into the present congress. According to the Budget, a publication that devotes itself mainly to governmental affairs, no less than a thousand of these call for expenditures and to a total of over four billions outside of the annual appropriations. Add this sum, the regular appropriations and the estimated cost of the bonus bill together and the total outlay called for would swell to varlike proportions.

To be sure, there is no probability of all the measures calling for more expenditures being passed, but they do indicate an extreme spirit of waste and extravagance that must be curbed with a strong and unsparing hand.

Indisputably Zanesville has some paved streets that in total depravity far exceed anything to be traversed in either Portsmouth or Ironton, but that is no excuse why the sister towns should not proceed to make the road smoother for the wayfarer.

Finest climate on earth, but passing from winter to summer over night is a thing that isn't at all necessary to mention to the stranger coming this way.

President Coolidge is said to be exceedingly anxious to do something for the farmer. If he would devise a scheme by which rural voters could have all rain when they don't want it and get sunshine when they do want it he would find them less disgruntled with his administration than he fears they are at present.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. McINTIRE

NEW YORK, May 10.—Ellis Island offers hundreds of daily dramas. It is the grim mill of human hopes for those who tearfully or joyfully await at the glittering gates of Manhattan. To every immigrant America is the promised land.

You see them walking up and down in the yards, straining their eyes to see the New York skyline. There are shawled women whose earthly possessions are encompassed in a shoulder bag. There are long-headed women with sucking babies. Men in corduroys and sashbells. Men with rings in their ears.

It is a fusion of all races. Now and then there is a sagging figure in a corner whose world has suddenly telescoped. He or she is being turned back at the very rim of the country from which so much was expected.

Now, there is always a sprinkling of those inarticulate tragedies with hearts of gold who cannot express themselves. Bewilderment has left them mute. But as a rule the immigrants are light-hearted. They look forward joyously to being scattered to cabbage farms, wheat fields or tenement quarters.

At eventide when the sun is bathing the New York harbor and the statue of Liberty is a glowing glow they dance and sing. An old man with an accordion strangles the Irish life of the island with wheezy tunes. A fiddler squeaks a folk dance for the children.

The attendants at Ellis Island are understanding. They know the tension. They have seen immigrants who had endured almost a lifetime of slavery arrive and, becoming suddenly overwhelmed, go stark mad. They are firm, but sympathetic. They know the brusque word may stop tears.

Many who arrive and expect to step off the boat into the metropolis are confused over being shunted to the barracks-like buildings of the island. They cannot understand English and they get the idea they are being placed in prison.

Bellboys in New York hotels who "know how to get it," are reaping a big harvest. A reporter has found 15 who own their homes, have automobiles and patrol the best cash was on the wrong side of the falling market is now head bellboy in one of the big hotels and he declares he has made more money in six months hopping bells than he did in the two years previous in Wall Street. The bellboy today is not interested in 25 cents or dollar tips. He is after bigger game. He can sell an 88 bottle of Scotch for $20 so long as his supply holds out.

Death lurks in them while spats, men! A Broadway actor is recovering from pneumonia. In an absent-minded moment he left the "laubs" for the theatre, without donning his accustomed spats. A heavy cold developed into pneumonia.

For many years a man in Arizona has been sending me anonymous warnings. The postmark of the town is indistinguishable. His latest one reads: "Watch out for a dark-haired man with thick eye lobes. He is after your fortune." If this comes to the attention of "the dark-haired man" I just want him to know that I'll be perfectly content with a ten per cent refund. I've been needing a tooth-brush lately.

There is another religious zealot who sends me Biblical quotations from time to time. He addresses me as "Bible." His last one was Deut. 22:3: "The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man...for all that do so are abomination unto the Lord thy God."

The only anonymous letter I ever wrote was to the lady who is now my wife. I was 17. It was after a tiff and I wanted her to have the impression I was galloping to the bow-wow. So the letter told how reckless I was becoming with life and hinted that drink might be my ruin. The letter came back addressed to me with this quotation: "Keep away from those wild soda water places." Copyrighted, 1924, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

THE WANDERER

Over and over the world he roamed,
On many an unknown track,
But the melody of his mother's voice
Always called him back.

His way was set with many a snare,
And oft enmeshed was he;
By the sweetest of his mother's kiss
He won the victory.

His wanderings o'er the mother's arms
Hold him close and fast;
And he said, "Through God's great gift of love,
I shall win to heaven at last."

Try Anything Once

A married couple had engaged a cook. She was pretty as a picture, but her cooking was terrible, and one morning the bacon was burned to such a crisp as to be wholly inedible. "Dear," said the wife to her husband, "I'm afraid the cook has burned the bacon. You'll have to be satisfied with a kiss for breakfast this morning."

"All right," responded the husband, gruffly. "Call her in."

Lodge Did Not Confer With Coolidge on Plan

WASHINGTON, May 10.—President Coolidge let it be known today that he had not been directly consulted about the provisions of the "World Court" proposal presented in the senate yesterday by Senator Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts.
